

Gadget Review: Evutec Cases – Sleek, Strong, Stylish

Posted on March 20, 2014 by Cirina Catania

It's the little things isn't it? Form, function, durability and good looks all come in a small, sexy package with Evutec's cases for your phone. I have an iPhone so mine looks like this:

Evutec's Wood S Series case for iPhone 5/5s in beautiful Bamboo.

I chose bamboo because it is environmentally friendly, plus feels good and naturally rich in my hands. Love it. But, it's more than good-looking, these cases are made from multiple layers of real wood veneer protected with DuPont's Kevlar and is RoHS2 compliant for those of us who really care about our world. They are light (only 0.9mm thin) and incredibly strong, snapping securely into place. The Wood S Series comes in light or dark bamboo.

For those business meetings that command a sleek and business-like presence, choose the Karbon S or SP Series (with an extra layer of protection) in black/gray or red/black. These cases are five times as strong as steel yet don't block cell signals and are also protected with DuPont's Kevlar.

Evutec corporation builds cases for mobile devices and tablets utilizing, "advanced, composite and recyclable materials," and a new technology that creates a product that is incredibly strong, handsome, and contains no metal to interfere with your cell signal.
